SITUATION IMPROVING

New Corporation Will Be Known as roads for the purpose of settling the Forces Fighting Yellow Fever at New Orleans Much Encouraged.

Report Shows Twenty-six New Cases, Deaths Two, and Deaths to Date

New Orleans La., July 23-The number of new cases of yellow faver reported is 20, deaths 2, cases to date

Enough success has already been achieved in the application of the 11853, 1867 and 1878, and a century ago in New York and Philadelphia.

With the cases last reported the ag-Rennington This is preliminary to 200. These are included in 20 to 25 the convening of a court of injuly focl, cocl number one including the sec-I tion around the French market, where the fever first appeared and where a large proportion of the cases and fatalities have occurred. This section rous from St. Ann to Baracks streets and from Chartres to the river, including about 40 city olocks

Italians are notoriously prone to avoid physicians, and the fever got a foothold in the district before it became known to the authoritles. No precautions were taken to avoid the mosquito, and the scourge spread with such rapidity that out of the cheap and crowded lodging houses the Italians who could get away fled in mortal terror, some going to friends in other sections of the city, some by rail to surrounding towns and some by luggers into settlements along the coast. The result is the appearance of cases of fever in various parts of the city, but principally below Canal street, in the neighborhood of the powrer classes. Six hundred corner procuries and saloons in New Orleans are owned by Italians, and many of these readily gave shelter to their fear-stricken comrades. Almost every instance of a new focus outside of the French marescaped therefrom, or some one of a different nationality whose business was in that section. There have been ten foci above Canal street traceable to the original, and one in Algiers. The Algiers case was of an American boy, proving fatal, whose employment was in the district.

Physicians and Laymen Disagree. New Orleans, July 28.—Because a mass meeting at Baton Rouge, the state capital, repudiated the theory of the physicians that the stegomyin is the only means of transmitting yellow fe ir and openly denounced all adherents of the theory, the medical members of the Baton Rouge board of health tendered their resignations. The other physicians at the capital have indorsed the action of those who resigned and will refuse to serve on the

It was alleged that publications revised by the official tended to direct the farmers to a commercial concern supplying the material because of the exhaustion of the supply by the department, The scientist involved in the allega gation admitted that his wife owned the stock; that stock was to come to him in the event that he severed his connection with the department and became the bacteriologist of the concorn, but that in the latter part of April he decided to stay with the department and the stock was no longer held in his family. It was also alleged that the culture had been supplied by the department to the concern mentioned in undue quantitles, the employe mentioned being charged with shipping 17 pounds in a single day. himself prepaying expenses. It is said that he admitted this and other shipments. The charges are under investigation by the department. Assistant Secretary Hays is making an investigation into the whole question of the value of the culture.

The persons making the charges announce their intention of bringing the matter before the president and the department of justice.

Personality and Characteristics

RUSSIA'S PEACE ENVOY

of Sergius Julius Witte.

IN BRAINS, OZAR OF THE CEAR

Chief of Enseign Meastch's Peas Mission Was an Enrucet Opponent of the Policy Which Led to the Russo-Japanese War - Tall of Stature, Master of High Plaance and Strictly Hónést.

The czar's appointment of Sergius

Julius Witte, president of the committee of ministers, to be chief pleningtentiary representing the Russian goverument in the peace negotiations between Russia and Japan to be soon conducted in the United States, is another proof that a subordinate who knows what he wants can dominate a master who knows not his own mind, says the New York World. Nicholas II. bates Witte, but this is not the first time he has sought his aid in an extremity, for in brains Witte is czar of the czar.

Witte's appointment makes for a lasting peace. He has the real tact that feels the right way to a goal. "I have no hesitancy in saying that if we all took to availing ourselves of all our rights there would be no living on earth," he declared when debating a vastly important question in the council of the Russian empire. "Right is often the enemy of expediency and compromise the safest mainstay of interest." It will interest Américans, who will soon see this great Russian, to know that he is tall of stature, heavy in build, stiff in deportment, awkward in gait, cold in manner, unpolished in address and of a temper so quick that it has added many to his enemies. Although he is a nobleman by birth, he was born poor and is a self made man -quick to think and slow to talk... M. in spite of the fact that his enemies crowded, was saushed to pieces, and are numerous and include some of the most powerful men in Russia. M. Witte has the reputation of being harsh to his subordinates. He is what is known as a well hated man, but his honesty and ability have never been doubted even by his worst enemies. One of the reasons for his unpupu larity is the fact that M. Witte is only remotely Russian. His father was of Dutch descent, and he himself was born in Tiflis, Caucasia, the headquar-ment in that part of the empire. M. Witte was created a count in 1901, but he has generally been referred to as M. Witte. He is without question an honest mun. A GREAT PHILOLOGIST.

Wenderful Story of an Italian

Barber's Apprenties. In one of the quaint old streets of the ancient Italian city of Bologia stands a queer little secondhand bookstore, kept by one Signor Guidi. Outside the door, in odd shaped stacks of shelves, Guidi displays his wares, and before the racks, says the Week's Progress, congregate many of the professors of the University of Bologua and other lovers of old and old publications...

- One day in 1882 Signor Guidi stood in his shop doorway watching idly a boy who had found a book which excited his keenest interest. Buddenly turning, he brought it to the shopkeeper and demanded the price. Signor Guidi looked at it and smiled. It was "The Life of Abdel Kader," written in Arabic. It was evident that the boy. who was only a barber's helper, could know nothing of Arabic.

· "My child," said the shopkeeper kindly, "this is a book you could not understand."

"But how much is it?" demanded the

"The price is 30 cents."

"And I have only 5?" The youngster seemed so nearly on the verge of tears that the shopkeeper made him a present of the volume and sent blm away happy. Later in the day he told some of the university professors the story, and the next day they wayfuld the boy and held a friendly examination. To their amazement, be translated readily at sight not only Arabic, but Latin and Greek, German, French, English and Hebrew. He expounded and explained with such understanding that the professors ceased to question and apblauded.

The boy was Alfred Trombetti, son of a poor laborer. His father had died several years before, and on wages of 20 cents a day he had supported his mother and had educated himself at night by study at home. His case was so amazing that at the recommendation of the professors the city of Bologua' made him a scholarship of $120 a year and thus enabled him to pursue his studies,

For more than ten years now Signor Trombetti has taught school in Italy, but ever since he obtained his doctor's degree he has kept buslly at work in his linguistic studies. Now he has ennounced the result of his study, a work of four large manuscript volumes, entitled "Genealogical Relations Between Ancient Languages." He has classified and rearranged more than 500 languages and dialects, ancient and modern, trucing them in a new way, and is said to have proved scientifically the unity of their origin.

King Victor Emmanuel has declared his intention of paying the cost of publishing the books, the Accademia de' Lincel has given Signor Trombetti a prize of $2,500, and he has been asked to go back to Bologua as a professor in the university there.

The teachers who discovered his learning, the bookseller who told them of the Arabic book and the city fathers who gave him the scholarship now will all lay claim to having discovered and helped the young boy and to have made his success possible. But the boy himself, studying by candlelight night after night in his squalld home, "This new flying machine they are with books and candles bought out with hunger grawing at his stomach "Yes, it can, but wake up! It won't." while he worked—the boy himself is the original discoverer and the one who did the real helping.

The Word "Yes" in England. Says a London critic: "The simple English affirmative is becoming somewhat buttered in common speed. 'Yes.' has long sounded as 'yus' from the lips of the uneducated. But there is a present tendency among the educated to adopt the American variants upon the word. America has found that an open vowel or a labial is easier to pronounce than a sibilant. And it has two substitutes for 'yes.' One of them is 'yep,' and the other is 'yah.'

"Obviously the 'yah' comes, from the influence of the simple German !ja,' which is quite an elemental sound. 'Yep,' on the other hand, is clearly a protest against the waste of time in getting tongue, palate and teeth in a position to hiss. Phonetic laziness is what the late Professor Max Muller would call it.

"Within the past week the present writer has conversed with half a doxen men of culture and position, three of whom 'yahed,' while the other three 'yepped.' "

The Simple Livers.

Just as if there were not already enough organizations and bodies and associations of people in this world, a new sect has arisen and is trying to buy land aid settle in Switzerland. These people call themselves "Simple Livers," but do not claim Pastor Wagner as their head. The "angel" of the enterprise appears to be a young and wealthy American widow who, forsaking the life of the world, has thrown in her lot with this strange community of seekers after simplicity. The "Simple Livers' wear only one garment-a loose, flowing robe of white flanneland let their hair grow long, as a protection against the heat and cold. Their diet consists of milk, fruit, bread and vegetables. Even in the most inelement weather they prefer to live and sleep out of doors, and they claim to be exempt from bodily Ills.

He is the only one who, having once com-pelled the earth to yield its treasure to his keeping, has had the wisdom to retain it and to convert it into his obedient social promoter.

It is a strange and fascinating story. this tale of a nouveau riche, with no stigma attached to the appellation. Here is a man who may enthrone himself in one of Newport's most famous dwellings. Beautiou, the summer home of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., without doing violence to the least of the social traditions which are so markedly the feature of the spot. This is precisely what the Walshes have done. Having decided to summer at the most exclusive social resort on the continent, they have taken Beaulieu for the season and an army of workmen is putting it in order, so that when the daughter of the house, Miss Evelyn, who has been visiting in Colorado, shall alight from her $18,000 motor car at the porte cochere of the mansion everything will be in readiness for the festivities to

Until he was eighteen he took his chances with a houseful -an Irish peasant's cottage at that-of blue cyed, sturdy limbed boys and girls, who feared nothing on the earth except the failure of the potato crop. In the spring of 1869 times were unusually dull in south Ireland and there was a brave scampering to America. Tom Walsh made no mistake. His premiér attack was a tusiliade of goldon dollars. So frequently has Paris been besieged by American millionaires that to win requires both renlus and unfaltering courage. The Walshes had them both. Tom's first coup d'etat was to charter a Stine river bort and fit it out in such a regal fashion that it was a wonder even to the surfeited Parlsians. Then "M. le Commissionnaire et Mme. The deck was converted into a conservatory of the rarest flow-ering plants. The staternoms were transformed into luxurious boudoirs, and their occupants were surfeited.

In the very midst of this suddenly acquired popularity Tom Waish and a specially invited party left Paris on a sumptuous train of five coaches to explore Beiglum. Daily bulletins of the splendors attending the tour came back to Paris and broadened the social halo which encircled the name of "Monsieur Tom." The most exaggerated accounts of the American's prodigality were current on the houlevards. One of them was to the effect that as the train sped from one art center to the next the guests amused themselves by gazing upon works of art which their host purchased and had renewed at each stopping place. When the Walshes returned to Paris they were social Hons indeed. The time had come when it was their privilege to demand any social favor that the gay city could grant. The republic conferred on the Colorado commissioner the cross of the Legion of Honor Shortly afterward the Walshes, enterturned Leopold, king of the Belgians, at dinner. It was served in the noble banqueting half of the Hotel Ritz, and Paris had never before seen the like of it. One of the attractions was the music by the exar's own band, the most exclusive musical organization in ex-istence, which had never before played at any other than a royal entertain-

It is evident that the venerable king of the Belgians made a complete surrender to the chaim of this Colurado family. Tom Walsh's shrewdness and good humor captivated him, and he became greatly interested in the west and its growth, particularly in Irrigation, in the development of which Mr. Walsh has been very prominent. The acqualitance ripened into a warm friendship, and the Tipperary lad and the old Belgian aristocrat are reputed to be partners in more than one business

After his return to America, Mr. Walsh settled in Washlugton and built for his house the most imposing palace in that city of noble dwellings. The Walshes have entertained all of the forelgn notabilities who have visited the country, and their social eminence is unquestioned. Mrs. Walsh is a handome and cultured woman, and Miss Evelyn, the only daughter, is one of Washington's acknowledged beauties The son, Vinson, now about sixteen, is devoted to the outdoor life and has also won laureis as an amateur Thespiss. There is a very complete little theater seating 300 persons, in the Washington residence, and the young Walshes and their cousin, Mouroe Lee, who makes his home with his uncle, give frequent entertalisments. Miss Evelyn is now eighteen and is a very charming and hus taken Beaulien so that she may be cans. If report has not belied her; she is a young woman who is likely to be

FOR JEWISH CONFEDERATES

Monument in Their Hogor Suggested

A writer to a Baltimore paper suggests that the Jewish soldiers of the confederacy ought to be honored with a monument as well as those of the federal army, a memorial to whom was lately unveiled in New York, says the Baltimore Jewish Comment. That there were many Jewish soldiers who served in the southern army is well known, though it is not so well known that, according to a speaker at the memorial exercises held lately at the Jewish cemetery in Richmond, Val. General Cooper had said that there were between 10,000 and 12,000 Jews who were the gray, and this statement was made during the war in explanstion of his refusal to grant them leave to observe the fall holidays. The army could not spare such a large number. Ten or twelve thousand may be an exaggerated estimate, but it shows conclusively that they were so numerous that the commanding officer had notice of their numbers. Jews were well scattered through the south during the civil war, and the communities at Richmond, Charleston and Savannah were quite large for those times. They bore their share of the battle. fought with bravery, died on the field and suffered the loss of their property along with the impoverished of other creeds.. There is absolutely no ground for the statement hitch made in an illustrated New York weekly in an artiele telling of the development of the south that the war left all southern people except the Jews poor.

In his address at the meeting in Richmond John S. Eggleston said that there were twenty-four Jewish staff officers in the Confederate army and eleven officers in the mavy; and the first surgeon general of the Confederate army was a Jew-General David de Leon. So the Jewish soldier of the south has a right to recognition, and, though he tought for a lost cause, his memory should not be lost too. It is quite possible that when the records are made up the coutliers Jewish soldier will have quite as proud a record as his brother of the north, whom prominent men took pains lately to honor. Wherever the Jew heard the call for duty he answered, and it is a wonder that in the south, where old time loyalty and consideration still hold sway, some attempt has not been made to do justice to the memory of those men who took the field at the call of their state.

He was born in Virginia in 1833, and was educated at the University of Virginia. At the outbreak of the civil war he was practicing law in his native state. He entered the Confederate army and served under General Joseph E. Johnston in the Shenandoah valley. Afterward he acted as an independent scout for the noted cavalry leader, General J. E. B. Stuart, and was intrusted with many hazardous and important duties. His most brilliant feat was the capture of General Stoughton at that Union officer's headquarters. Scarcely less daring was his capture of General Sheridan's entire supply train, which he accomplished by a raid into Union lines. After the war he opened a law office in Warrenton, Va. From 1878 to 1885 he was American consul at Hongkong. On his return to the United States he established himself in California

It is a strange and fascinating story, this tale of a nouveau riche, with no stigma attached to the appellation. Here is a man wno may enthrone himself in one of Newport's most famous dwellings. Beaulieu, the summer home of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., without doing violence to the least of the social traditions which are so markedly the feature of the spot. This is precisely what the Walshes have done. Having decided to summer at the most exclusive social resort on the continent, they have taken Beaulieu for the season and an army of workmen is putting it in order, so that when the daughter of the house. Miss Evelyn, who has been visiting in Colorado, shall alight from her $18,000 motor car at the porte cochere of the mansion everything will be in readiness for the festivities to

When the Walshes returned to Paris they were social lions indeed. The time had come when it was their privilege to demand any social favor, that the gay city could grant. gests that the Jewish soldiers of the confederacy ought to be honored with a monument as well as those of the federal army, a memorial to whom was lately unveiled in New York, says the Balthuore Jewish Comment. That there were many Jewish soldiers who served in the southern army is well known, though it is not so well known that, according to a speaker at the memorial exercises held lately at the dewish cometery in Richmond, Va. General Cooper had said that there were between 10,000 and 12,000 Jews who were the gray, and this statement was made during the war in explanation of his refusal to grafit their leave to observe the fall holidays. The army

could not spare such a large number. Ten or twelve thousand may be an exaggerated estimate, but it shows conclusively that they were so humerous that the communiting officer had notice of their numbers. Jews were well scattered through the south during the civil war, and the communities at Richmond, Charleston and Savannah were quite large for those times. They bore their share of the battle, fought with bravery, died on the fela and suffered the loss of their property along with the impoverished of other creeds. There is absolutely no ground for the statement lately made in an illustrated New York weekly in an article telling of the development of the south that the war left all southern people except the Jews poor.

In his address at the meeting in Richmond John & Eggleston said that there were twenty-four, Jewish staff officers in the Confederate army and eleven officers in the mary; and the first surgeon general of the Confederate army was a Jew General David de Leon. So the Jewish soldier of the south has a right to recognition, and, though he fought for a lost cause, his memory should not be lost too. It is quite possible that when the records are unde un the contlices Jewish soldier will have quite as proud a record as his brother of the north, whom prominent men took paint lately to honor. Wherever the Jew heard the call for duty he answered and it is a wonder that in the south, where old time loyalty and consideration atill hold sway, some attempt has not been made to do justice to the memory of those men who took the field at the call of their state.

John Singleton Mosby, the distinguished ex-Confederate scout and colonel of cavalry, is still living and is practicing law in San Francisco. He was born in Virginia in 1833, and was educated at the University of Virginia. At the outbreak of the civil war he was practicing law in his native state. He entered the Confederate army and served under General Joseph E. Johnston in the Shenandoah valley. Afterward he acted as an independent scout for the noted cavalry leader, General J. E. B. Stuart, and was intrusted with many hazardous and important duties. His most brilliant feat was the capture of General Stoughton at that Union officer's headquarters. Scarcely less daring was his capture of General Sheridan's entire supply train, which he accomplished by a raid into Union lines. After the war he opened a law office in Warrenton, Va. From 1878 to 1885 he was American consulat Hongkong. On his return to the United States he established himself in California. THE NEW ALBRIGHT ART GALLERY IN BUFFALO:

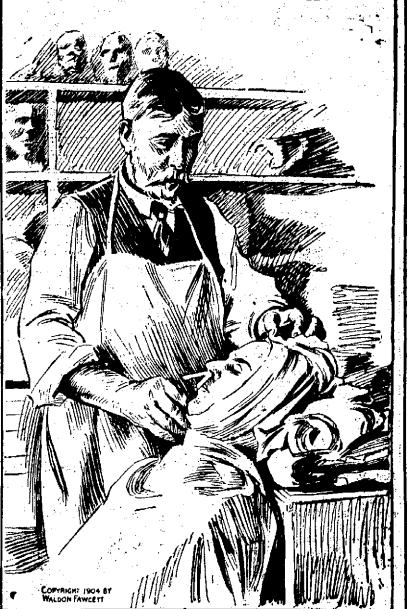

The handsome Greek structure shown in the picture was recently dedicated to the service of art in the presence of one of the most distinguished gatherings ever seen in Buffalo. It is a gift to the citizens of the Bison City from John J. Albright, the largest owner in the Ontario Power company. It is 250 feet in length and has a width of 150 feet. The main part of the temple borrowed its beautiful classic features from the Athenian Acropolis. The building is of white marble from the Maryland quarries, which have supplied so much-material for the capitol at Washington. Besides building this noble art temple, Mr. Albright has announced his intention of devoting large sums to the purchase of works of art with which to beautify its interior.

This is the largest sum ever given for a single example of artistic workmanship in Great Britain. The goblet is carved in rock crystal and mounted with enameled gold. It is known as the Gabbitus Biberon and is probably German in origin. It is in the shape of a grotesque animal; and the head forms the spout. It was made in the sixteenth century and the figure on the top was added by some its lan artist of a later period. The purchaser was Charles Werthelmer of London, the noted are collector,

At 10 o'clock the body of the intrepid admiral, first of SERVICES AT NEW the rank in the navy to which he brought fame, was carried by four French and four American bluejackets from the navay tug Standish across a bunting decked float and placed for a moment upon the sea wall of the new basin.

The Ceremonies.

The thousands gazing upon the mahogany casket thus saw, after the lapse of more than a hundred years, the return to the land of his adoption the body of Jones. The ceremonies were simple, but when the Naval Academy shore batteries boomed forth with the fifteen gun admiral, many eyes were wet. There of bands inexpressibly touching. Honor, long deferred, was being done a true hero in a manger fittingly solemn and fittingly simple.

Fleet of Ships. Beautiful weather and a quiet sea made a perfect setting for the fleet of ships lying four miles out in the ships lay at anchor, Admiral Sigsbee's flagship, the Brooklyn, to the with the battleships and cruisers in line. Not far away was the ecre. All the ships were their colors at half mast.

Lying upon a catafalque, upon the cholera infantum. half deck forward of Admiral Sigshee's quarters on the Brooklyn was the metal casket, sheathed in mahogany containing the remains. Shortly after 9 o'clock the casket was lowered to the Standish and placed upon the forward deck of the tug, a guard of honor, a marine detachment of the flagship, surround-

In the meantime every sailor and marine who could be spared from the ships was sent ashore, the harbor presenting a lively spectacle with the swarm of small boats transfering the men. The French cruiser likewise sent her sailors and marines ashore the officers following and joining the American officers on the sea wall. When the Standish approached the specially constructed float, the ships' companies were formed in line, the French sailors having the post of honor at the center and flanked by the blue jackets and marines. The body was transferred to the float and was then carried to the sea wall, where the honorary pallbearers took their posts on both sides of the hearse in which it was placed. The honorary pallbearers were Rear Admiral James H. Sands, superintendent of the naval academy; Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis, commanding the division of the North Atlantic squadron; Captain Benjamin F. Tilley, Captain E. D. Taussig, Captain William H. Reeder and Captain E. E. Gervais of the French cruiser Jurien.

THE OLD TREASURER OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE NEW.

A change in the treasurership of the United States is a more elaborate undertaking than most persons imagine. Every dollar of the money in the various subtreasuries must be counted, and if there is a shortage of a cent the retiring official must make it good out of his own pocket. When it is considered how widespread are the ramifications of Uncle Sam's pecuniary operations and that the current business of the government must go on in the usual manner while the count of funds is being made the magnitude of the task upon which accountants are now at work may be appreclated. Ellis H. Roberts, the retiring treasurer (shown in the upper portion of the illustration), has held the position since 1897. Early in life he was a printer, teacher, editor and newspaper proprietor in Utica, N. Y. He was elected to the state assembly and then to congress. From 1889 to 1803 he was assistant treasurer of the United States, after which he engaged in banking in New York city until his appointment as chief custodian of Uncle Sam's funds. Charles H. Treat, Mr. Roberts' successor; is by birth a New Englander, though his political prominence was won in Delaware, where he was a prominent manufacturer. FINE EGG TESTER

Probable Good Thing for a Citizen of Marion.

Joseph Miller, the south State street grocer, has invented an eggtester, which, he believes, will make him a fortune, as it is the only tester of hen-fruit in the United States, he Oregon Senator Gets Six says. The tester is remarkably simple in construction. A patent has been applied for.

For a number of years, Mr. Miller, was in the egg business at La Rue, selling to New York commission houses. Many of the eggs he purchased were rotten, which, at the end of the year, amounted to considerable money loss. To prevent this he set about to invent something that would unveil the internal secrets of an egg Is Forever Barred from Hold--whether or not it were good or bad. So he made a box-shaped affair about two feet wide and the same height. On one side of the inclosure it is dark; on the other a lamp or candle is set. The eggs are placed on a piece of window glass, and by means of the light are made transparent if they be fresh. Otherwise they appear solid and black.

The Military and Naval Outlook In Scandinavia LIFE IN WHEATFIELDS

INCE the rather tragile thread which has united Norway and Sweden for the past ninety years has been broken by the bener's action in declaring itself a separate state, and especially since a resort to arms is likely to follow, it will be instructive to examine the milltary and naval resources of the possible belligerents. The union has never been a perfect one. So far as all practical purposes are concerned the two pountries have been about as distinct they were previous to 1819, when, erippled and bankrupt, a victim of the Napoleonic wars, Norway was relin-nuished by Denmark and compelled to accept a Swedish sovereign. It had been under the control of Denmark for 800 years, and it has never taken kindly to the Swedish union.

The ninety years which have clapsed since the treaty of Kiel, signed by the Bonapartes and the defeated Danes and never recognized as valid by the Norwegians, mark the longest peaceful period in the history of either nation. The Scandinavians are not committed irrevocably to the arts of peace. The Norwegians especially have never shown an inclination to permit others to conduct their quarrels. They have threatened a hundred times to bring matters to a crisis, and they have boasted openly that dissolution of the union was certain to come. The anomalous character of the union makes separation a comparatively simple matfor, but there are other things to be considered. One of them is the amour propre of Sweden. That was wounder by Norway's brusque departure, and as consequence the Swedish government retaliated by declaring the harbors of Stockholm, Kariskrona, Gothenburg and Faros to be war ports.

Norway and Sweden have their own Separate armies and navies." The only common feature was that the king of the united countries was commander in chief of both of them, and the members of the royal family were officers in both armies. Under such conditions it seems almost incredible that the Norwegian forces could have found un opportunity to prepare for revolution without the full knowledge of Sweden. It is a fact, however, that when the declaive moment arrived the Norwegian army was ready to act and promptly took the oath of allegiance to the new temporary government.

Should these two northern countries: actually come to blows it is certain that the world would be witness to a very spirited and hotly contested war. The campaign would probably be fought on the coasts. If it were to be pro-longed until the winter season it is able to raise and maintain a larger the world. She has a very small navy, borderland is an almost continuous chain of mountains. Three railroads have been cut through from Sweden into Norway, but the latter kingdom is very poorly supplied with roads. Sweden, on the contrary, especially the lower part, contains numerous rallroads and well built public highways. Norway has a long extent of coast line. This is free from ice all the year, even above the point circle. The influence of the warm current of the gulf stream, which passes that way, keeps ice from forming even in the coldest weather. For this reason Russia has always been scheming to acquire a port in this region. The Swedish ports do not have this great advantage. The Baltic is frozen from December to April. Sweden has a population of over the frontier between the countries and 5,200,000, while Norway has considerably less than half that number. Sweden has one armored cruiser, the Fylgia, of 4,050 tons and of 12,000 horsepower. She is rated at 28.5 knots She is practically new and cost $1,750,000. At least five of the gun-boats belonging to the Swedish navy are of an effective type, but the elever monitors on the list are of ancient construction and cannot be estimated as of much value. Some of them have been rebuilt recently and may be use ful for harbor defense. One submarine boat was built in Sweden last year and trials have proved its value. There are also a number of cruisers, gunboats and training ships. There are 212 officers in the regular naval service and 160 reserves. It is thus apparent that the Ewedish

Nearly a score of the men who were sent to the Kansas harvest fields by A. B. Jamison, superintendent of the state employment bureau, visited him recently. They had returned to Kansas City after the work ran out; and they were clated with their experience in the wheat, says the Kansas City Star. They laughed at the idea that the work was too hard. Many people will be surprised to learn that there is such a thing still in existence as a horse race run as a religious ceremony, in which the horses receive the blessing of the priests at their parish churches before taking part in the race, while the jockeys not only ride to win, but are expected to assail one another fiercely with their beavy riding whips during the race, says a writer in the Outlook for August. TRANSPORTATION IN THE INTERIOR OF NORWAY.

In the interior of Norway both the roads and the vehicles are of the most primitive character. The mail coach is unknown and both mail and passengers are carried in rule two wheeled carriella like the one shown in the cut. Some of these are more suikles, with only a single scat in front and a rear extension for baggage and the Criver. Most of them, however, are arranged for two passengers and their baggage. There are no regularly established routes, every peasant who owns one of these go-carls is expected to respond to any demand, at any hour, and his fee is fixed by law.

ADMIRAL TOGO IN HIS CABIN ON THE FLAGSHIP MIKASA.

The cut shows Admiral Togo in his cabin on Loard the Milasa. He is explaining to a war artist how it happened that he escaped death from the bursting of a shell during one of the engagements at Port Arthur. The fragments were collected carefully and comented together, and the restored shell now stands in the admiral's cabin alongside a perfect one, which also came on board the Mikasa during the same engagement, but did no damage. The admiral keeps on his table two beautiful dwarf trees, several c nturies old, which were presented to him by an admirer. Reside them is the indispensable smoking box, within which a bit of charcoal is always glowing. The open album is the our to which a visiting artist is always invited to contribute a sketch.

Appears on the Wing Some Times in June When the Blossoms on the Locust Trees Are Fading-Bulletin Issued by Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster.

Last year, in response to inquiries sent into all countles of the state. fifty-nine countles reported the red weevil present in noticeable numbers. On station wheat plots it was found present in ten per cent, of the kernels of all varieties. It affected the smooth wheats to a greater degree than the bearded kinds, but no variety was immune. This year, reports from many sections of the state indicate that greater damage has been wrought than last season and the same observation applies to the station fields.

The fly, which is a close relative of the Hessian fly, is a yery small, delicate insect, appearing on the wing sometime in June, usually about the date when the fireflies first appear and the blossoms of the locust trees are fading and falling to the

The eggs are laid in a cavity or groove at the upper end of the outermost chaff, so that the young maggots, on hatching, can readily reach the inciplent kernel. These reddish larvae imbibe nourishment from the milky kernel, ceasing to feed after the grain becomes hard. He told how he was in many instances erroneously looked upon as a slave, working as an officer of the congregation. The salary which he is paid is not for the labor, but a mark of appreciation for grave responsibilities which he takes upon himself. The congregation should demand of the pastor, not only the customary teachings and preaching from the pulpit, but a life of earnestness, righteousness and sincerity, while the pastor may demand a business-like conduct and harmony in all affairs.

He further told what a recommendation it would be if the work of the congregation was carried always faithfully out. He related as an example, the story of the Cedar church in Alaska, the scent of which is detected in the air for many miles. He also stated the qualifications of the pastor were due to his education and former experiences. He should becoming stagnant and the members mon laborers remains unchanged. from becoming ossified. ¶Indigestion is making an awful record as a cause of sudden deaths. It is beatmg heart-failure in its glassly harvest.

To read in the papers daily of apparently healthy and even robust men being suddenly attacked with acute indigestion after enjoying a hearty meal, and of their dving in many cases before a physician could be called in.

This should be a warning to you who suffer with regular or periodical attacks of indigestion. If these unfortunate victims of acute indigestion had taken a small dose of Green's August Flower be fore or after their meals they would not have fallen a prey to such sudden seizures. August Flower prevents indigestion by creating good digestion. It also regulates the liver, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system in a natural way. 7 QTwo sizes, 25c and 75c. Department Is Called by Telephone From Chicago Avenue-A Very Quick Run Is Made-Loss Over $1,100-Inmates of House Visiting Relatives in Nevada.

As the result of a fire Saturday morning, the home of Ed Tonguet, its contents and the house which is owned by Dr. J. G. Seiter, are a complele loss. About 2 30, the department was summoned by a telephone call from a party on Chicago avenue, who had noticed the fire after it had gotten well under way. The department made a quick run, but the house was too far gone to save it The main effort was made to save the neighboring houses, which were but few feet away, the houses being built closely together.

The front part of the lower floor done remains. The furniture of the parlor and dining-room was saved. The nearest hydrant being on Center street, it required the laving of 750 feet of hose to fight the fire.

Dr. Seiter estimates his loss at $300, which is insured to the amount of $500. Tonguet's effects were insured for $300, but it is not thought that this will cover his loss.

The family were in Nevada visiting relatives, and it is thought that the house was set afire, but there is no direct clue of the cause.

Uniform excellent quality for over a quarter of a Gentury has steadily increased the sales of LION COFFEE, The leader of all package coffees.

Lion Coffee

is now used in millions of homes. Such popular success speaks for itself. It is a positive proof that LION COFFEE has the Confidence of the people.

The uniform quality of LION COFFEE survives all opposition. LION COFFEE keeps its old triends and makes new ones every day.

LION COFFEE has even more than its Strength, Flavor and Quality to commend it. On arrival from the plantation, it is carefully roasted at our factories and securely packed in 1 lb. scaled packages, and not opened again until needed for use in the home. This precludes the possibility of adulteration or contact with germs, dirt, dust, insects or unclean hands. The absolute purity of LION COFFEE is therefore guaranteed to the consumer.

Libels Upon the Senate.

The reckless and grossly intemper- | that express such opinions know betate criticism of the United States ter. senate by many newspapers of the highest standing is something to make the judicious grieve. Condemnation of the senate as a body appears to have become a fad with certain journals which ought to know better. Taking the cases of two senators, found guilty of crime, and of several ethers exposed for their moral obliquity, some newspapers have gone to the extent of denouncing the senate itself as the hothed of corruption. They have conveyed to their readers, inferentially, at least. the deliberate opinion that a majority, if not all, of the senators are grafters and lawbreakers, whose sole object in reaching and remaining in the senate is to further the schemes of great corporations. The senate is held up to the people as a ring of mil-blocking corrective legislation. If the newspapers which publish these libels upon the senate were as ignorant as they seem to think their the blind were leading the blind. crealize, even vaguely, what such a load means in common food staples, for example, or in fuel, or in the weight of animals, including men?

Away from the docks the average reader of statements published about the growth of lake traffic is quite unaware of their significance.

One cargo of 11,000 tons equals the weight of more than 100,000 men, women and children, taking them as they come in a city. Four such loads would move nearly all the people in Cleveland, if weight and not space were the test of vessel capacity. One steamer's cargo weighs as much as 22,000 average horses or 75,000 swine. It is the weight of more than 100,000 fat sheep of the mutton breeds.

Sinch a load is equivalent to all the wheat raised on 20,000 acres of good land, with a fair average yield. If all the parks belonging to Cleveland were turned into tilled fields it would take fifteen good wheat crops on every acre to load one steamer like the E. H. Gary with a single eargo.

NAMES OF WARSHIPS.

Superstition Still Molds Sailors-Story of the Chesapeake.

The decision to change the name of the training ship Chesapeake to Severn because of the bad-luck which befell the first ship, of the former name shows that even in an age of enlightenment superstition survives among scamen. The reason, assigned is that the original Chesapeakë was "unlucky" because of the Ill fortune that befell her some years before the breaking out of the second war with Great Britain and the lowering of her dag to the Shannon during that war,

While we have no desire to question the motive in changing the name, we think it well to temember that, although the old frigate struck her colors twice, there was no dishonor in either case.
